Please note that the process for issuing encroachment permits for moving pod involves the following steps:

1. The City will review the permit application – the review will involve:
  - 1.1 Field assessment – city staff will check to see if the property cannot accommodate the moving pod or if the moving pod is impossible to be in the private property. If the moving pod cannot be placed in the private property, then staff will continue to review the permit application.
  - 1.2 Insurance – the owner will need to obtain a copy of the insurance of the moving pod provider. The insurance will have to endorse the City, its representatives and the public right-of-way area where the pod will be placed.
  - 1.3 If approved for permit, the moving pod will only be placed at a city-approved location typically in front of the property, not neighbor's or across the street.
2. If approved for permit, the applicant will need to pay the permit fees.
3. If approved for permit, the applicant will need to coordinate the moving pod delivery and pick up with the City Public Works Department Inspector.
